FATTENING CHICKENS.

One Man Finds It Pays to Let the Farmers Fatten the Birds.

At the meeting of the Western Ontarto Poultry association, at Guelph, Mr. Adam Armstrong of Fergus told of his experience in crate fattening chicks. The first season he had 100 fattening croops, each having a capacity of 20 birds, made. At the end of the season he was behind $100 and the cost of the coops. Then he thought of the plan of letting the farmers themselves. This has worked so well that, though he sold the first coops, he proposes to have more built, which he will let out among the farmers for nothing. He says he usually pays seven cents a pound for unfattened and and nine cents a pound for fattened chickens. Chickens make best gain when put in the coops at three to four pounds weight, and should increase two pounds or more on five weeks' feeding.
